

What's a Super Bowl without chicken wings?

Abbey Road

The ever-popular Abbey Road Pub & Patio boasts some of the best wings in the city. Their saucy, well-cooked wings are meaty and lean, they're available plain or dusted, and the quality is consistent regardless of when you go. The sauce selection covers all the classics, but you can combine sauces for even better flavour combinations. Our favourite: Jack Daniel's BBQ mixed with hot, for a blend of sweetness, smoke and heat. Go on a Thursday—it's just $5 for a pound, and you can jam with the house band!

Beaver & Bulldog Neighbourhood Taps & Grille
Beaver & Bulldog has long been a staple in Mississauga for great wings, which are big and meaty, not fatty. The sauce selection has been reduced, but the ones that remain cover a good range of flavours. Try the Chipotle wings for a nice balance of heat and flavour, the Thai for some sweet heat, or the Tsunami for face-melting spiciness. Half-price on Tuesdays after 4:00 p.m.

Blue Sage Gourmet Eatery
The wings at Blue Sage are unlike most others you've had: these are straight-up low-and-slow barbecue-grilled wings. They never touch a fryer and the meat falls right off the bone. Mainly you taste meat and smoke, and the sauce acts as an accompaniment, not the dominating flavour. If you're looking for something different with your wings, this is the place to go.

Coopers Pub
The crispy wings at Coopers may be a bit smaller, but what they lack in size they make up for in flavour. There are over 20 flavours available: try the Cajun or the Smoked Honey Garlic, or for something a little different, the Coconut Curry. Wings are on special on Sundays (all day) and from Monday to Wednesday (after 4:00 p.m.) with the purchase of a drink—a pint and a pound will only cost you close to $10!

PK Creek Bar and Grill
Tucked away in the corner of a plaza just west of Dundas and Hurontario lies PK Creek. Their wings are big and filling, and taste like a cross between barbecued and deep-fried. Their flavours lean towards the milder and sweeter end of the spice spectrum, so if you like heat, order at one spice level above your usual. 50-cent wings every Tuesday. It's also an ideal place to watch the Super Bowl, with lots of seating and TVs.
